Hey, football fans! Show us your team spirit

A big game is taking place at noon Sunday, Nov. 16.

Most area football fans probably are aware of the matchup I am writing about.

For the first time this season, the Chicago Bears will take on the Green Bay Packers.

For those who are not aware, the Bears and Packers are huge rivals.

Now, I know there are National Football League fans in Lake County.

I have seen people decked in Bears gear. And I have seen people decked in Packers gear.

Kathy Gresey

The Lake County Journals would like to capture that team spirit.

We are asking readers to send in pictures of themselves preparing for - or watching - the Chicago vs. Green Bay game.

Going to the game?

Send us shots of yourself wearing face paint, tailgating or sitting in the stands.

Watching the game from home? Send us pictures of yourselves cheering on the team that you love.

We will put the best shots of Bears and Packers fans into the next edition of the Lake County Journals.

This is your chance to prove in print how dedicated you are to your team.

Pictures can be e-mailed to me at kgresey@nwnewsgroup.com. Please include the first and last names of those who appear in the shots.

Those who have a friend or family member serving in Iraq will have the chance to speak with their loved one face-to-face in January.

The University of Illinois Lake County Extension will host video-conferences that allow for discussion on Jan. 12 and 13, 2009.

Play aims to empower 'real women'

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

GRAYSLAKE - "Real Women Have Curves," written by Josefina López, will be co-presented by the College of Lake County Theatre Department and the CLC Latino Outreach Group. The play brings to life a microcosm of the Latina-immigrant experience through an empowering and universal message.

The 2002 film, starring America Ferrera of TV's "Ugly Betty" fame, was based on the play, which tells the story of Ana, a Mexican-American teenager who dreams of going to college and becoming a famous writer.

But fresh out of high school, she reluctantly takes a job at her sister's tiny sewing factory in East Los Angeles. As Ana and her co-workers race to meet nearly impossible production deadlines, they debate perceptions of beauty, women's roles, family, immigration and traditional versus mainstream culture.

A post-play discussion will take place with the director, cast and community members following the Sunday, Nov. 16, performance.

The guest director is Carol Karaguez from Chicago, who brings a wealth of cultural, educational and directing experience to the show. She received her master's degree in

If you go ...

"Real Women Have Curves" will be presented at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 14, 15, 20, 21 and 22 and at 2 p.m. on Nov. 16 in the Studio Theatre at College of Lake County.

Tickets are $10 each for general admission and $8 for CLC students/staff and seniors 65 and older. Call 847-543-2300 for more ticket information.

fine arts in directing and dramaturgy from the Chicago College of Performing Arts at Roosevelt University, where she directed "A Lie of the Mind." Karaguez also trained with the Steppenwolf School, Second City and California State's Summer Arts. She has directed plays for Chicago Dramatists, Silk Road Theatre Project, Overflow Ensemble, Chicago Cultural Center, Darknight Theatrical at University of Illinois-Chicago and the recent Element: New Plays Festival.

"[I] jumped at the opportunity, because this play is on my to-do directing list," Karaguez said of the directing opportunity in a release. "I really connected with this play. I feel very passionate about it, and I'm very happy to be directing it."

Karaguez added that "Real Women Have Curves" is about how being a real woman has nothing to do with body size or curves.

"It has every thing to do with the confidence you have no matter what your color or size," she said. "It's a timeless piece, a celebration of women and their spirit. Although the characters are isolated by social and gender identities, through this experience they bond together, learn from each other and value their self respect. It's important as a woman's play, and it doesn't matter what color or size you are to appreciate or identify with any of characters in the play."

The play differs from the popular movie in several ways.

There are only five women in the play, and all the action takes place in the sewing factory.

"The movie took some liberties and made commercial compromises aimed at a younger audience and broader topics," Karaguez said. "Both are successful in telling a great story. Audiences won't be disappointed in the play."

The CLC cast consists of CLC student Noelle Velasco of Round Lake, playing the lead role of Ana; Stephanie Reuter of Gurnee playing Estela; Rosanne Neville Meder of Hawthorne Woods playing Carmen; Vita Carnduff of Antioch playing Pancha; and Griselda Gomez of Waukegan playing Rosali.

Lakes Community High School hosts ceremony to recognize local veterans

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com

LAKE VILLA – To some, it may just be another day off in the course of a long school year. But Lakes Community High School Principal James McKay believes students at his school understand why Veterans Day stands apart from other holidays.

"I think you'll find that at Lakes High School the kids truly understand why we have [Veterans Day] off," he said.

At an all-school assembly Nov. 10, students at Lakes hosted local veterans in a ceremony that included representatives from many conflicts, including World War II, Afghanistan and Iraq.

The ceremony included an address by Capt. John Peterson, commanding officer of the U.S. Navy Recruit Training Command, and readings from winners of a poetry contest that was sponsored by the school's English department.

As veterans were introduced, they were greeted with rousing applause, and ultimately a standing ovation after all veterans had been introduced.

William Oerly, who served in the Vietnam War, said he was happy to attend the event after coming to a similar ceremony at Lakes the previous year.

"The youth go in there, write the poems that they do, and treat us the way they do," Oerly said. "It's heart-touching."

In his address to the student body, Peterson noted the multitude of ways students can serve their country, whether in the military or otherwise.

"Each of you out there in the audience are going to step up in your time and in your own way," he said. "You will serve society; you just may not know how or why."

Peterson also highlighted the personal sacrifice of each of the veterans in attendance.

"Each generation of veterans has served our society and a cause much greater than themselves," he said.

Corporal Jonathan Baum, along with other members of the U.S. Marine Corps Color Guard, present colors at the Veterans Day ceremony at Lakes Community High School.

"What you have in front of you is living history."

After the ceremony, Peterson again said while some students will choose to serve in the military, others will work as police officers, teachers, janitors or numerous other occupations.

All of these possibilities, Peterson said, are ways students serve the country.

"America offers so many opportunities [to serve]. There is a dizzying array of options in this country," he said.

Social studies teacher Rebecca Holst helped organize the ceremony on Nov. 10. Based on feedback from veterans and students the previous year, she said, it was clear the ceremony was worth hosting a second time.

"We can tell [students] what happened a thousand times, but to see someone who was there, that adds to the authenticity," Holst said.

The opportunity to interact with veterans continued throughout the day, she said, as some veterans attended social studies classes to speak with students and share experiences.

Junior Callie Bretthauer was the winner of the school-wide poetry contest, and read her poem "Warrior" as a part of the morning's ceremony.

She said the warrior comparison was an appropriate one of soldiers serving in the military.

"You get to hear people speak; you get to see people who actually served. It's reality right there in front of you," Bretthauer said of the morning ceremony.

McKay, who also served in the army during the early '90s, said anytime LCHS has the opportunity to invite local residents into the school the students are the ones who benefit.

"It's vitally important that our school plays a role in teaching history outside the history book," he said.

Senior running back Cameron White runs the ball during the Class 6A second round playoff game against Highland Park. Antioch won 35-34 in overtime to reach 11 wins, the most in school history.

Antioch advances with win

Sequoits, 11-0, now boast most victories in school history

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – Sometimes the wins come in blowouts, and sometimes they come by the slimmest of margins.

One week after winning 68-6 in the first round of the class 6A state playoffs, the Antioch Sequoits won again. But instead of once again cruising to the next round, this time the Sequoits squeaked by the Highland Park Giants, 35-34 in overtime.

Not only did the win keep the undefeated season alive for the 11-0 Sequoits, but it also set a school record for most wins in a season.

This will be the first time in more than 20 years Antioch will make a trip to the quarterfinals.

Head coach Brian Glashagel said the back-and-forth nature of the game kept the Antioch sideline on edge throughout the contest.

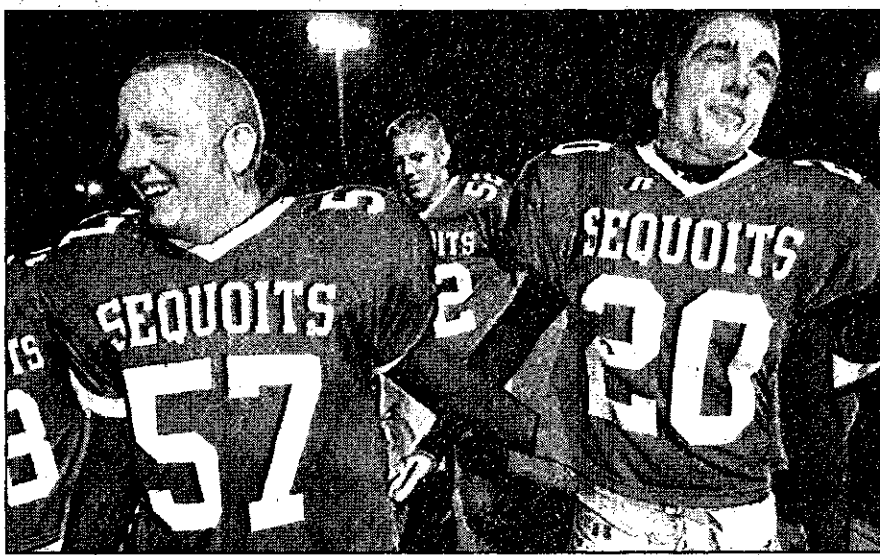

"There were several times in the fourth quarter when the emotions were like a roller coaster," Glashagel said. "It's the only game I've been a part of where there were literally 15 what-ifs."

After entering the half tied at seven, the two schools traded touchdowns in the third quarter.

But as he's done all season for the Sequoits, senior running back Cameron White took over the scoring in the fourth quarter. The senior scored twice in the final period, including an 80-yard touchdown run to give Antioch a 28-20 lead.

But Highland Park marched down the field on its final possession of regulation for a touchdown, and followed with a game-tying two-point conversion.

After White scored again to open overtime, Highland Park followed with its own touchdown. But this time the Antioch's Louis Schultz, Alec Paramski and Ethan Jackson, all seniors, come off the football field after their team won the Class 6A second round playoff game against Highland Park.

Want to watch?

Comcast SportsNet has announced plans to televise Saturday Nov. 15 matchup between Antioch and Glenbard South. CSN's game coverage takes place at 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 15. Tom Dore will handle play-by-play with Chicago Tribune Live host David Kaplan providing color commentary.

Giants failed to convert the two-point conversion, giving the Sequoits the victory and a trip to the quarterfinals.

Glashagel said he also would have went for the two-point conversion and the win if he had been on the Highland Park sidelines in overtime.

"If there's anyone who says go for the field goal [in that situation], they don't know football," he said.

The Sequoits now must go on the road for a Saturday, Nov. 15, showdown against 9-2 Glenbard South, a number six seed.

Glashagel said his team is prepared to travel.

"We travel well; our crowd is crazy; it's awesome," he said.

Although it would take a win from both teams, the potential remains for the Sequoits to meet conference rival Grant Bulldogs in the semifinals. Grant takes on number one seed Lemont on Nov. 15.

Although he said he's not looking ahead to matchup with the Bulldogs, Glashagel said, the fact that both teams are in the quarterfinals is a testament to the strength of high school football in Lake County.

However, a meeting with Grant is not yet a reality.

"Both of us have our hands full," Glashagel said.

Funding secured for Route 83 project

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

A $20 million highway improvement plan for Route 83 has received funding. The plan focuses on the stretch of highway between Petite Lake Road in Lake Villa and the Wisconsin state line.

"This area of Lake County has seen a major increase in population growth in the past few years, and this project will help ease some congestion," said Illinois Department of Transportation Secretary Milton Sees in a release. The $20 million project will add a turn lane and widen the state highway.

Additionally, the project will seek to improve the drainage system and modernize traffic signals along the highway through the communities of Antioch and Lake Villa.

More than 12,000 vehicles a day travel along Route 83 in Northeastern Lake County, officials said.

Weather permitting, the project will begin in the summer of 2009.

It is expected to be completed in 2010.

Referendum comes up short again for First Fire District

Voters reject tax hike for fourth time in Antioch Township

By COLIN SELBO

cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – For all the victory on election night, there was at least one organization that did not get quite enough votes.

Among those groups that fell short on Election Day 2008 was the Antioch First Fire District, which saw a referendum fail for the fourth time.

The referendum received 1,989 yes votes – or 39.96 percent – compared to 2,988 – or 60.04 percent – voting against the referendum.

Assistant Fire Chief Jeff Vandevorde said prior to election night, the department was hopeful it could garner enough votes for passage. He was unable to point to a specific reason why the needed votes for approval did not materialize.

"It's really hard to pinpoint. We had so much positive feedback," Vandevorde said.

He said, "I thought we did very well, getting the information out, but maybe we didn't."

Approval of a new tax rate would have made it possible for the department to start running fire engines with advanced life-support capabilities, allowing engines to serve the same function as an ambulance.

The rate increase also would have allowed the department to staff each of its three fire stations 24 hours a day.

Approval of the referendum would have cost the owner of a $200,000 home about $150 annually.

The fire district has plans to place another referendum on the ballot in April next year, Vandevorde said.

In the mean time, the department plans to make additional information on the referendum and the district's needs relative to other taxing bodies available to the public, Vandevorde said.

The hope is that these efforts will lead to increased feedback from the community, he said.

"We're asking [for] less than other fire districts. I just don't know how we can get people to see the need," Vandevorde said.

Considering the number of people on fixed incomes in the district, and the current state of economy, Vandevorde said, he recognizes this is not an ideal time to ask for a higher tax rate.

"This one of the worst times to be asking for a tax increase," he said.

Regardless, the district's needs are such that the only option is to try again in the spring, officials said.

"This isn't going to go away; this is something we have to do," Vandevorde said. "There's nothing else we can do."

Credit union sponsors countywide food drive

NORTH CHICAGO – In response to the recent revelation that the number of people relying on food pantries to feed their families has nearly doubled during these tough economic times, Great Lakes Credit Union has selected a local pantry in each of its eight branch location communities and has asked members and employees to donate non-perishable food items.

These efforts will benefit families in the communities of Antioch, Gurnee, Libertyville, North Chicago, Round Lake, Spring Grove, Waukegan and Zion.

An initial drive will supply food items in time for the Thanksgiving holiday.

A second drive will supply additional food items in time for the Christmas holiday season.

To donate items to the many citizens across Lake County in need this holiday season, stop by any GLCU branch and look for the grocery cart in the branch of each lobby.

'See Your Soldier' a face-to-face chance

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

GRAYSLAKE — Dozens of Illinois families will have the chance to visit face-to-face with their loved ones in Iraq on Jan. 12 and 13, 2009, through the University of Illinois Extension's videoconferencing system.

Soldiers and other military personnel who are based at Al Asad Airbase, Camp Taji/Cooke, Camp Fal-lujah, Camp Taqaddum and Camp Victory will be able to see and talk with family members in private 30-minute "See Your Soldier" sessions hosted by University of Illinois Extension offices in 13 communities.

There is no charge to participate.

Families must register online at www.seeyoursoldier.uiuc.edu no later than 5 p.m. on Dec. 23 to be eligible for a time slot.

Reservations will be made on a first-come, first-served basis.

The live audio/video link-ages are being offered in collaboration with the Freedom Calls Foundation, which provides the video-conferencing equipment and satellite connection in Iraq.

When a family has registered, the military will alert the service member about the opportunity to visit with friends and family, and the time and date of the Internet transmission.

If the soldier's duty schedule can accommodate the visit, family members will be assigned a time for their 30-minute session.

Locally, the "See Your Soldier" video conferences will take place at the University of Illinois Lake County Extension, 100 S. Route 45, in Grayslake.

Those who need a reasonable accommodation to participate in the program, should contact the host extension office.

>> YourView*A thank you

To the Editor: This is an open letter of thanks to all of the people in District 1 who heard my message of hope.

We came very close to changing the way that business is done in our community, and there are 7,549 disappointed voters in the 1st District.

Linda Pedersen said that this is not just a victory for her, it's a victory for all of her friends.

I truly hope that she does not forget about us.

I cannot tell you how much I wanted to address the issues that the residents of the district told me about over and over again.

Even though I did not win the election, that does not mean that we cannot still take steps to improve our community.

I want all of my supporters to know that this is not the end but the beginning.

I truly believe that our voices were heard.

This is how democracy is supposed to work, and I believe that it worked perfectly.

I will continue working to make things better for you and everyone in the entire 1st District.

Thanks a million for participating and making democracy work.

Cleaning More Effectively

Inadequate brushing of your teeth allows the formation of a sticky coating of saliva, bacteria, and food deposits. If your teeth are not cleaned, this material accumulates to form a substance known as plaque which promotes tooth decay and gum disease. Once this substance is hardened, it becomes tartar and must be scaled off. At this point, no amount of tooth brushing will get rid of it. It initially forms on the tooth surface next to the gum, but eventually works its way under the gum where it creates an ideal environment for bacterial growth. Additionally, its physical presence causes irritation which in turn leads to gingivitis.

One way to check your tooth brushing technique is to use disclosing tablets which stain hidden plaque so that you can see the areas you need to brush more effectively. The stain will also show quite clearly that plaque cannot be completely eliminated unless you supplement your brushing and flossing.

Internet purchases take huge bite out of state, local sales tax revenues

A few years ago, I wrote a column suggesting that the increasing volume of business sales on the Internet is robbing the state and local governments' precious dollars in lost sales taxes.

In other words, all of the businesses that register sales in your community must collect sales taxes on purchases and those tax revenues provide valuable and necessary government services for your community. Nothing has changed.

Internet sales are still growing by leaps and bounds, yet they are still protected against sales taxes.

I shouldn't say nothing has changed. Whether you call it a recession or not, the economy is in trouble, and every unit of government has been severely affected by it.

We might as well be honest about it. If it waddles like a duck, and quacks like a duck. It's a duck.

Yes, it's a recession, and the only thing that we don't know is how long it will last and how severe it will become.

Here in Illinois, we are reminded every day of the enormous budget gap.

Yet, we have a governor who likes to add goodies to the budgetary "Christmas tree."

For example, he takes the popular position of providing free transit rides for all seniors and disabled persons.

Who can be against that?

Except that he doesn't provide the revenue to pay for it. He offers a massive construction program without a means to fund it.

The governor favors putting the lottery, one of the state's major funding assets, into private hands.

His policy on most issues is: "let the future be damned; that's someone else's problem."

If you think that things are bad now. It will get worse here and about the country. All of the states are facing shortfalls.

The housing burst has caused sharp declines in property taxes that most local governments rely on, particularly for education.

John S. Matijevich

It was just reported that we have faced the worst unemployment increase in 20 years. That adversely impacts income tax collections, so vital for government revenues.

Sales taxes are taking a large enough hit. The buying power of consumers is falling. It's a vicious cycle. The less revenue for government, it is often the case that there is a need for more services.

And the bottom line is that you can't spend what you don't have.

I don't know how much the state of Illinois is losing because Internet sales are federally exempted from assessing sales taxes.

It has to be millions because it has been reported that the nationwide losses amount in the billions.

It just doesn't seem fair to me that local businesses, which invest everything they possess in communities, must collect sales taxes, while the faceless giants who make fortunes on the Internet are getting a free pass.

You can say with certainty that those "profiteers" are getting somewhere between a 5 percent to 10 percent advantage over the local retailer who takes risks to develop businesses in our communities.

For some, it is the breaking point between staying in business or closing their doors.

That is unfair competition, and only Congress can, and should, remedy that unfairness.

Sharing thoughts on U.S.

Ten-year-old Noah DuBose held his mother's hand somewhat reluctantly as the two left Grant Park at night on Nov. 4.

Thousands poured onto the streets of Chicago. Noah was mesmerized, as his mother, Jennifer, kind of dragged him along.

"Wow," she remembered him saying, "all these people."

It is a night Jennifer hopes her son revisits decades from now.

Jennifer, a licensed marriage and family therapist who lives and runs a private practice in Batavia, put her name on a waiting list and somehow landed two tickets to the Grant Park rally.

Knowing she could turn around if she feared for their safety, she took Noah.

"My son's kind of a tough cookie. When I suggested the possibility, he just jumped out of his skin and said 'yeah,'" she said.

"I wanted him to be there to witness history happening, to see firsthand what it means to people."

Jennifer, who also writes a blog for Chicago Parent, said the two of them found an ideal spot to sit near the bathrooms and the exits on a grassy knoll in the park.

Noah could see over the crowds, and Jennifer could feel a little more secure.

They cheered and high-fived with the rest of the crowd as the results slowly came in, as Pennsylvania, Ohio, then finally, Virginia went president-elect Barack Obama's way.

They had talked about the election and the electoral college, but Noah was able to actually see the impact of these votes, to learn from experience, not just a book.

"He saw people fall on their knees in tears, not just black people, white people," Jennifer said.

"He saw people with tears streaming down their cheeks and dancing and hugging each other."

Jennifer likes to remind her families in therapy that she's not the only one in the room, that everyone needs to work to solve the problems.

Like many parents, including me, she saw this election as an opportunity to show children the impact everyday people can make.

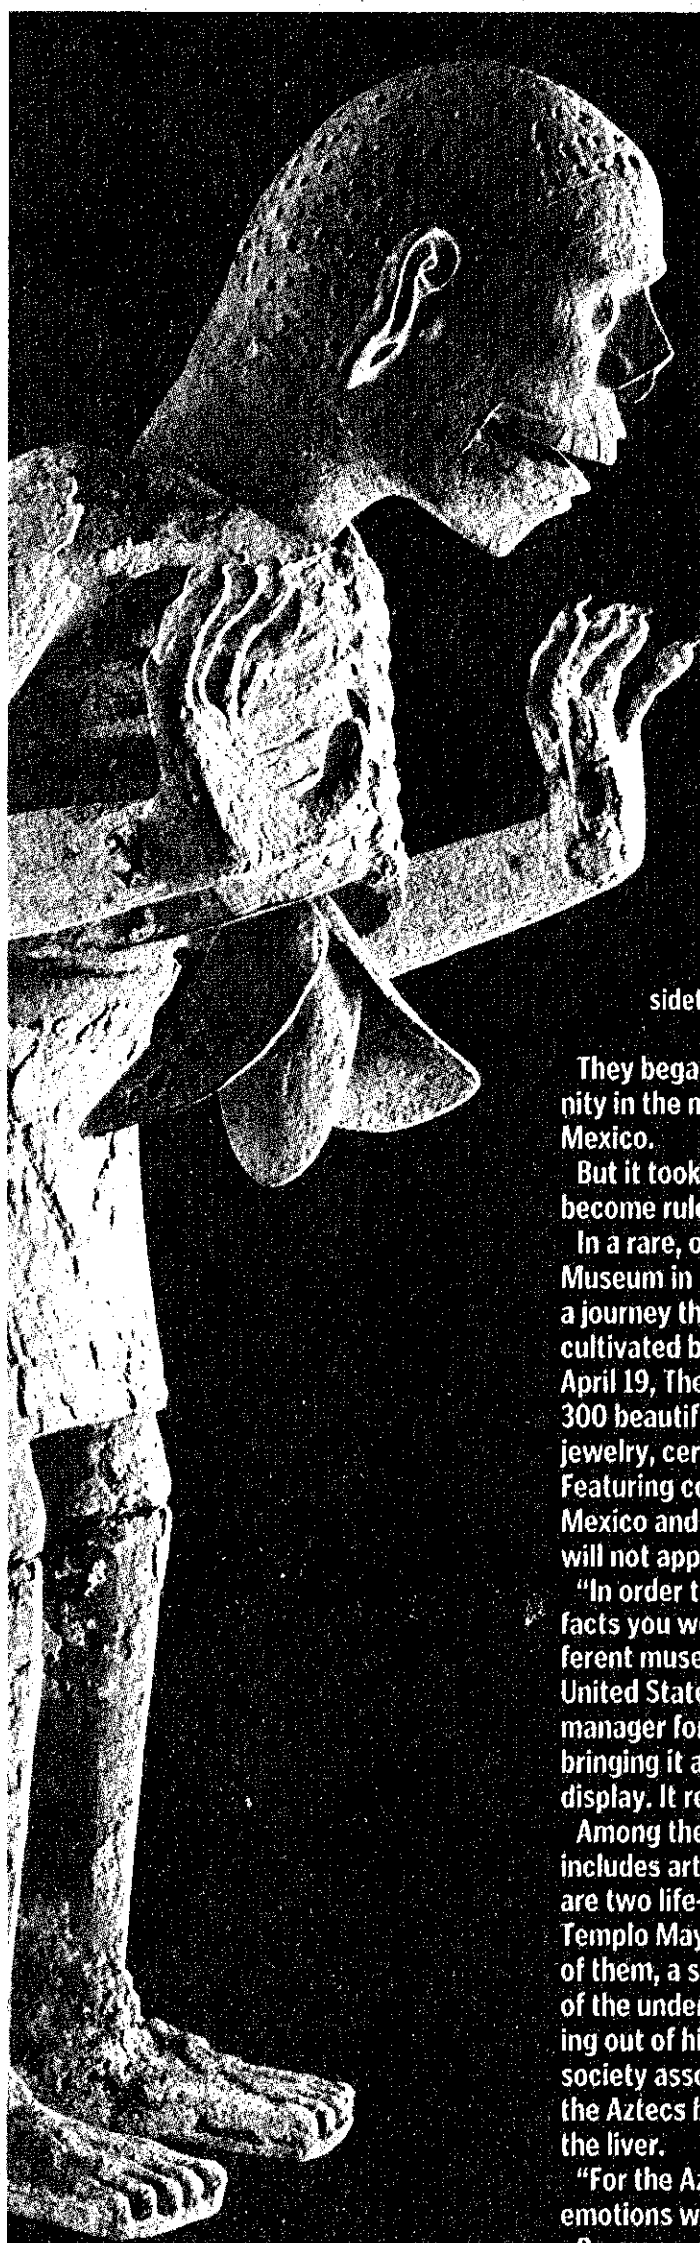

"He saw how real it is, that simple people can make a difference," she said.

"I think that's the best lesson for a kid to learn, 'I do have the power to make a difference,' no matter your political stripes."

Even if you weren't at the park, even if you're a Republican, you can't help but feel a part of something bigger, something we'll probably never again experience in our lifetimes.

If the passion, intensity and turnout for this election shows anything, it's that people do care about their country. And look how far we've come.

One-time Aztec exhibit comes to Field Museum

By GENEVA SLUPSKI
sidetracks@nwnewsgroup.com

They began as a small, nomadic community in the middle of a lake in the Valley of Mexico.

But it took just 200 years for the Aztecs to become rulers of an empire.

In a rare, one-time exhibit, The Field Museum in Chicago is taking visitors on a journey through a civilization that was cultivated beyond its years. Open through April 19, The Aztec World offers nearly 300 beautifully crafted artifacts, including jewelry, ceramics and stone sculptures. Featuring collections from 29 museums in Mexico and the United States, the exhibit will not appear any place else.

"In order to see all these different artifacts you would have to travel to 15 different museums in Mexico and 14 in the United States," said Hilary Hansen, project manager for The Field Museum. "We're bringing it all together and putting it on display. It really is once in a lifetime."

Among the pieces in the exhibit, which includes artifacts dating back 500 years, are two life-size ceramic figures from the Templo Mayor Museum in Mexico City. One of them, a statue of Mictlantecuhli, lord of the underworld, depicts his liver hanging out of his body. Much like modern day society associates the heart with passion, the Aztecs believed human emotion was in the liver.

"For the Aztecs, logic was in the heart and emotions were in the gut," Hansen said.

Be prepared though. Coming face to face with the Mictlantecuhli figure can be quite intimidating.

"He's kind of this spooky figure," Hansen said. "He's got his hands up and his fingernails are long. It makes a big impression when you walk in on this guy."

An important image in Aztec culture was the eagle, which appears throughout the exhibit, including in a stone eagle-shaped vessel that served as an altar. The eagle imagery continues to exist today in the Mexican flag.

Aztec traditions also remain in the Nahuatl language, spoken by about 3 million people in Mexico, said Franck Mercurio, exhibition developer for The Field Museum. Aztec culture also has influenced the names of towns and neighborhoods in and around Mexico City, he said. Even words such as tomato have origins in the Aztec language.

"There's an urban legacy there as well," Mercurio said. "Mexico City wouldn't be there today if it wasn't for the Aztecs."

One aspect visitors might be surprised to learn about is the level of sophistication of the Aztec culture. Mercurio said the Aztecs built aqueducts to provide fresh spring water. They also used an advanced flood control system of dams and increased their farmland by building artificial islands or raised fields.

"Images of human sacrifice might come up when people talk about the Aztecs," Mercurio said. "But I think there's a lot more to the Aztecs than people know about or have read about or seen on TV."

Just as interesting is the craftsmanship of each artifact in the exhibit, many of which are made out of volcanic stone. Because they had no metal tools, the Aztecs used stone tools, as well as rope and water, to carve their sculptures, Mercurio said.

"It's just really amazing that they were able to achieve such a high level of craftsmanship in terms of stone sculpture without having any metal tools," Mercurio said. "I think that's a marvel of engineering that they were able to do this."

'Quantum' saved by 007 performance

By JEFFREY WESTHOFF
jeffreywesthoff@jeffwest.com

We rejoin Daniel Craig's James Bond in "Quantum of Solace" with a car chase already in progress.

This is a bold move by director Marc Forster ("The Kite Runner") to grab the viewer by the throat and shove him into the passenger seat of Bond's Aston Martin as he rockets through the tunnels of Italy's Autostrada at about 150 mph.

Do we need to know why those sleek Alfa Romeos are roaring after 007 with submachine guns blazing? Heck no, this is a Bond movie.

So, yes, give Forster points for his boldness. Then take them away because the car chase is a mind-scrambling, post-Bourne mess.

'Quantum of Solace'

Rated: PG-13 for intense sequences of violence and action and some sexual content

Running time: 1 hour, 46 minutes
Writers: Paul Haggis, Neal Purvis and Robert Wade
Director: Marc Forster

The individual shots of careening cars look terrific (they certainly do in the commercials) but editors Matt Chessé and Richard Pearson fail to assemble them into the coherent mini story that successful action sequences should be.

It's all ZOOM ZOOM BANG BANG CRASH CRASH and just as you get a glimmer of what's going on, the chase ends without a climax.

The opening sequence summarizes everything right and wrong about "Quantum of Solace." The film is a series of bold moves by a director attempting to make an artistic James Bond movie. Half of these bold moves don't work, but the other half do.

Fortunately, while Forster dabbles in French New Wave jump cuts and "Godfather"-inspired montages of silent gunplay underscored by arias, Craig delivers a performance even more dynamic and decisive than his debut in "Casino Royale." With his cool blue-eyed gaze and assured athletic moves, Craig holds this insanely uneven movie together. His presence burnishes the stylistic experiments that work and alleviates those that fail.

Don't attempt to watch "Quantum" without seeing "Casino Royale," or the new film will make no sense.

After rebooting the venerable series for the 21st century, "Casino Royale" ended with Craig finally saying, "My name is Bond, James Bond," as the familiar theme hit a crescendo and the credits rolled.

At the time audiences assumed this signaled that the old James Bond was back, but it turns out Bond still has to work through some issues stemming from the death of Eva Green's character, Vesper, at the conclusion of "Royale."

Wracked by guilt and tempted by revenge, Bond longs for that elusive quantum of solace (I applaud Forster for not explaining the title, which comes from one of Ian Fleming's short stories).

"Quantum," then, is the second half of a two-film origin story. The plot shatters traditions. Themes are unusually political, and unusually left-wing, for Bond.

The Grape Vine Restaurant: Fine Dining In Island Lake

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

The Grape Vine Restaurant in Island Lake offers a fine dining experience not to be missed.

Owners Chef Bob Janz and his wife Marla, along with partners Mike and Brigitte Ellis, strive for excellence in every detail. As a result, the restaurant has established a solid reputation for quality, value and service.

The extensive menu reflects Chef Bob's more than 30 years of culinary experience. Chef Bob was formerly executive chef of Chessie's in Barrington, then Marlowe's in Palatine, before opening The Grape Vine Restaurant in 2004.

"Everything on the menu is made from scratch from original recipes," Chef Bob said. "I prepare food with an Italian, regional American, or multi-ethnic influence using only the finest, freshest ingredients."

Chef Bob said the restaurant's signature dishes include the sesame-seared tuna and the Gorgonzola encrusted steak, as well as their homemade ravioli. You can also choose from appetizers like steamed blue mussels, homemade soups, salads, sandwiches, entrees like grilled salmon Portobello, and tempting desserts, such as their signature chocolate mousse tower.

In addition, Bob said The Grape Vine offers pizza "that food critics and pizza aficionados agree is the best pizza around." Finally, you can complement your meal by ordering one of their boutique wines by the glass or bottle, a specialty martini, or choosing from an assortment of imported and domestic beers.

The Grape Vine also offers daily specials. I tried a selection from their "recession menu" offered Thursday through Sunday. Ten "recession buster meals" are featured for $10 each. These smaller portions of their regular gourmet fare are a real value. I enjoyed one of their most popular items, the "smothered sirloin" consisting of six ounces of London broil, grilled onions, and mushrooms covered in a rich Bordeaux wine sauce. This was paired with a helping of their tasty, garlic mashed potatoes. This "smaller" serving was more than ample, especially accompanied by the fresh, homemade loaf of bread.

The restaurant has the casual feel of a European bistro and the attentive service that makes dining out a pleasure. But if you elect, all menu items are available for carry out or delivery. Delivery is available to Island Lake, Wau-conda, Cary, Tower Lakes, Barrington, and parts of McHenry.

"We offer affordable catering for parties up to 50, or up to 300 at several offsite banquet facilities," Bob added. "We also hold monthly wine dinners with different featured themes." He said more information about these dinners is available on the restaurant's Web site.

Finally, Chef Bob's own line of homemade sauces, dressings, and spice blend is available at the restaurant or on the Internet.

Again, the restaurant's fine cuisine, excellent service, and warm ambiance make a visit to "Wine & Dine at the Vine" a must for your next night out.
